

NEARCHING FACTORY

CREATING NEW SCENARIOS FOR ARCHAEOLOGY
SANTIAGO DE COMPOSTELA JAN 30TH TO FEB 1ST 2017

What is it?

Nearching.org/

NEARCH is a European Project which seeks new scenarios for archaeology by involving the community. NEARCHing is a factory for building sustainable practices in archaeology.

Over the last few years, thousands of jobs have been lost in the archaeological sector.

The purpose of NEARCHing Factory is to re-think the practice of archaeology (i.e. archaeological as a way of life and of making a living) in order to build, in collaboration with others, a process for the creation of new opportunities to sustain archaeological activity.

To regenerate the conditions for the professional practice of archaeology

To incorporate new types of activity into the practice of archaeology

To align the archaeological profession with social demands regarding the use of Heritage

To anticipate what needs to be changed in order to make all of the above possible.

Local organizer

CSIC

incipit

Funding

Culture

This is NOT a congress

NEARCHing is a factory, a workspace where ideas can be transformed into something more specific by means of collective effort.

It's not an academic meeting. Rather, it is clearly political in nature, in that it does not merely seek to debate theoretical positions, but to propose practical, sustainable, multivocal and participatory solutions which can be incorporated into public policies.

When?

From 30th January to 1st February 2017

Where?

Santiago de Compostela
(Galicia, Spain)

Who is it for?

For archaeologists and people working in cultural heritage, inside and outside academia. Anthropologists, architects, artists, economists, managers, planners, curators, educators, craftspeople, associations or groups that are looking for and defending collective heritage.

You need to register as soon as possible!

Pre-registration call from September 8th to October 9th 2016

Registration fee: €80 (including coffee breaks and lunch).

nearching@nearching.org

Nearching.org/